Two long-serving real estate professionals inducted into Centennial Builder Hall

Regina, Saskatchewan: The real estate community is about more than buying and selling property. It's also about enhancing the places where we live and work and leaving things a little better than when we came. This year, we are pleased to honour two individuals who have made such contributions by welcoming them to the Association of Regina REALTORS® (ARR) Centennial Builder Hall.

Created in 2012 as a legacy to the ARR on its 100-year anniversary, the Centennial Builder Hall recognizes members and staff who have made outstanding contributions to the real estate industry and the association. Regina REALTOR® Murray Dollard and ARR CEO Gord Archibald are deserving of this recognition for the leadership and dedication each has exhibited throughout their careers.

Murray Dollard was destined for the real estate industry. The Dollard real estate legacy began in 1957 when his father Bert, a Builder Hall Inductee in 2017, formed Dollard and Gallagher Real Estate Ltd. Dollard followed his father into the real estate business in 1979 after graduating from the University of Regina. As one of the ARR's longest serving members, he has served the REALTOR® community locally, provincially and nationally, as President of the ARR and the Saskatchewan Real Estate Association and as a Director of The Canadian Real Estate Association (CREA). Dollard played a role in negotiating the consent agreement with the Competition Bureau, which stands today as the Principles of Competition. Dollard has also given his time and energy to serve outside the REALTOR® Community through various service organizations and volunteer committees.

Gord Archibald is the longest serving Chief Executive Officer of the ARR, having led the association from 1993-2019. Early in his tenure, he was instrumental in preparing the ARR to embrace emerging technologies such as the Internet and he helped guide a modernization of the ARR's governance structure. Archibald worked together with other Saskatchewan REALTOR® associations to establish one of the first province-wide MLS® systems in the country. During his time as CEO, the ARR's membership expanded to include all Southern Saskatchewan. He established many strategic partnerships in the Regina area while raising the profile of the ARR in the community. At the national level, he served on CREA's Board of Directors and as Chair of the National Association Executive Council. Archibald was a recipient of the CREA's Association Executive Award of Excellence in 2017.

"I have been fortunate to work alongside such extraordinary leaders in the real estate community as Murray and Gord, and I can't imagine two more deserving recipients," says Dave Markus, ARR President. "The contributions each have made to the industry have been significant in creating the roadmap for our existing association and paving the way towards future successes."
